Arts Market and Improv Workshop at Northgate

GTG was pleased to be a part of the Sundog Festival/On the Edge Fringe Festival's Creative Arts Market on Saturday, March 23rd held at Northgate Shopping Centre. We had some of our old programs and posters to share and enjoyed connecting with the community!!

We were also pleased to offer an Improv Workshop during the market led by community member Masha Blokh and our VP Artistic Matthew Jemmett. It sounded like they were having a lot of fun! If you are interested in improv, Masha is developing a group here in North Bay. Email presidentgtg@gmail.com and we will pass your information along! We hope to have some improv focussed events in the near future.

John and Marisa Bressen also read from their newest play as part of the Open Mic session. "When There's a Will" has been workshopped through our New and Local new work incubator program and we are so glad they had a chance to share some of the script with the broader community.

A big thank you to Kelsey Ruhl, Tara Windatt and all the organizers for putting together this great event showcasing arts in North Bay.

Not Just Play Readings with and For Seniors!

Maggie's Getting Married

by Norm Foster

A play reading for seniors.

Tuesday April 30th North Bay Public Library

5:30 – 8:30 pm

Just returning from the wedding rehearsal, everyone has an opinion about Maggie and Russell! The kitchen of the Duncan family becomes the hub where each family member takes a turn having their say. Witness honest talks that reveal how everyone is really feeling about the big day ahead. Maggie's parents reflect on their marriage, the realities of getting older, and the uncertainty that lies ahead. Two sisters catch up as sisters do. Despite being close, they are polar opposites and sibling rivalry has affected their lives. Watch the dream begin to crumble as Maggie's older sister, Wanda, discovers that she knows the groom a little better than Maggie would like her to ...and what about Axel?

The next regular readings held at the North Bay Public Library from 5:30-8:30 pm are on:

Tuesday May 28

Tuesday June 25

Thank you to the Opera Bakery Café and Hade Coffee for providing refreshments for our regular monthly play readings.

For more information, please email seniorsgtg@gmail.com. The program is delivered with the help of Theatre Making North Bay.
